- On 26 August, the UK Minister for the Constitution and EU Relations, Nick Thomas-Symonds MP, made a speech on the future relationship with the EU in which he said the UK Government's aim was to have an SPS agreement with the EU in place by 2027. The Minister said detailed negotiations will begin in the autumn.

The Multiannual Financial Framework (EU budget)

This section outlines developments in relation to the EU's budget for 2028-2034 including funding for EU programmes to which the UK may associate.

- On 16 July, the European Commission published its proposals for its next long-term budget, known as the next Multiannual Financial Framework (MFF). It will cover the 2028-2034 period and sets out the proposals and budget for the next round of EU funding programmes. The proposals total €1.98tn in total. Some significant changes are proposed to current funding programmes.
- Key proposals for funding programmes of interest to Wales include:
 - Erasmus +: The EU's international exchange programme has a proposed budget of €40.8bn over the period. It will merge with the European Solidarity Corps programme. In addition to education mobility it will have an increased focus on areas such as grassroots sport exchanges.
 - AgoraEU: This will be the EU's new culture, media, citizens, equality and rights fund. It will merge Creative Europe with the Citizens, Equalities, Rights and Values (CERV) programme. Creative Europe will remain a distinct strand. The new programme will also have a MEDIA+ funding stream. Its proposed budget is €8.582bn.
 - The European Competitiveness Fund and Horizon Europe: This would be a new fund worth €409bn. Horizon Europe will remain a separate programme within the fund but close collaboration between the two programmes and the wider fund will be expected. The European Commission says the proposals will ensure connected funding from initial research and innovation to scale-up and deployment. €131bn of the fund will support investment in defence, security and space in support of the development of a European Defence Union.
 - Regional and cohesion funds including INTERREG: The European Commission is proposing that many of the existing funding programmes including the Common Agricultural Policy (CAP), funding for fisheries, regional and cohesion funding should be brought into a single National and Regional Partnership Plan in each Member State. Although each plan will contain ring-fenced strands for things like CAP this would still be a significant change. INTERREG which funds inter-regional and territorial cooperation would become part of this plan with its own chapter. It provides for cross-border collaboration on a range of key areas including with third party countries. The proposed budget for INTERREG is €10 billion Euro. The PEACEPLUS programme which funds cross-border and community cooperation in Northern Ireland will remain a distinct strand.

- Third country participation: Key for the UK and Wales will be the extent to which third countries outside of the EU are able to associate to these funding programmes. The UK already associates to the current Horizon Europe programme and has said it may associate to Erasmus +. The proposals would allow for third party association in full or in part provided that it offers a fair balance of contributions and benefits. Some limitations are proposed on collaboration on sensitive areas such as the audiovisual sector which requires third party countries to align with EU rules for the sector.
- Member States in the Council and Members of the European Parliament will now consider and scrutinise the proposals and the text of the regulations proposed to implement the budget. Both institutions must agree before the final financial framework can be adopted.

Welsh Government engagement on EU issues

- In July, the Welsh Government issued a response to an Freedom of Information request on the devolved management of replacement EU funds, which asked for copies of correspondence between UK and Welsh Government on this issue. Whilst, the response stated some information was exempt from disclosure, it provided links to publicly available documents, including to the transcript of the Committee's evidence session with the First Minister in June. The correspondent submitted a complaint which was responded to in August. The Welsh Government concluded that "exemptions applied to the original request were correctly applied".
